Details here about Binance !

Changpeng Zhao started Binance in 2017 as a digital currency exchange that has quickly ballooned into one of the biggest exchange companies around the globe. Binance is an exchange based in Malta which provides the user interface to trade all popular cryptocurrencies, such as Bitcoin, Ethereum, and over 2000 other coins. It supports basic and most advanced trading characteristics like futures and margin trading therefore useful for both beginning and professional traders.

Binance offers staking, features saving products, and a special coin known as Binance Coin (BNB) which helps you lower your trading fees. The platform is one of the most liquid ones, and it also features rather distinct security features. However, users should always keep abreast with any new development particularly regarding regulation of the exchange in different legal systems.

KYC or Know Your Customer means the Binance account that has been verified according to the necessary anti-money laundering rules. This process involves user's full name, address, date of birth and identification number, and identification details like a passport or a driver's license. The first and foremost aim of implementing KYC practice's is to minimize fraud, money laundering and other heinous crimes. The KYC verified account on Binance grants users a longer withdrawal limit and it allows one to trade in cryptocurrencies legally and securely, and also fulfills legalities hence; improving the safety of users.

Can I increase my transaction limits on Binance without additional verification?

Like any related exchange, to raised your restrictions for transactions on Binance platform, you are needed to test and complete the higher level of identity verification.

- Verification Levels and Limits>

Basic Verification: Basic verification completes will enjoy lower limits much lower than fully verified users. For example, the daily withdrawal limit will be 0.06 BTC for all types of trades, but only for accounts with basic verification.

Identity Verification (KYC): In order to raise limits, for example, KYC identification is required, after which the limits will be higher. This requires producing an ID that is issued by the government and a utility bill. When this step is done, you are now able to withdraw higher amount statements up to one hundred (100) BTC per day.

Verified Plus Status: For even higher limits like daily deposit/withdrawal of up to 15000$$ you need to be at the Verified Plus level and for that you will have to provide extra identification.

Why You Should Consider Buying Verified Binance Accounts for Business/Trading?

While engaged in cryptocurrency trading, time is incredibly valuable, and having a verified Binance account may be very beneficial for your brand. At least, a verified account can pave your way to have high trading limits, which makes it convenient to do massive transactions. Furthermore, this allows to avoid cases of account suspension due to violation of the requirements, as verification performs a compliance function. With the help of our service, you are able to buy a Binance verified account without going through hours of verification. Furthermore, there is increased security from your account as most verified accounts have better securities against likely attacks. In an industry where time is equal to money, getting to use a verified account adds so much value and smoothness to trading.
